Reports From Interior May Add to Death Toll; Santo Domingo Transformed Into Ruins

By United Press

The number of dead in the city of Santo Domingo, which was almost destroyed by a hurricane, was increased today to 1000.

Four thousand are injured and 30,000 homeless. The fate of the rest of the West Indian republic remains unknown.

Danger to the American coast has passed, the Weather Bureau announced. It reported that the storm was blowing itself out while moving toward the Florida Straits.

Doctors, nurses, medical supplies, food and clothing are en route to the stricken city by airplane and steamship from Cuba, Porto Rico and the U. S.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic—The casualties in the hurricane that devastated Santo Domingo Wednesday were estimated today at more than 1000 killed and about 4000 injured.

Many of the injured were so seriously hurt they were expected to die.

Late surveys of the capital showed the devastation to be even more extensive than originally believed by officials.

30,000 Homeless

With about three-quarters of the population of more than 40,000 homeless, the sanitary authorities ordered destruction by fire of all wreckage likely to cause disease and other precautions were taken against pestilence.

The American, British, Cuban, Mexican, Spanish, French and Haitian legations were demolished. The Haitian minister and his family are living in the cellar of the wrecked legaton, without food or clothing.

The buildings of the Bank of Nova Scotia, offices of the Bull Insular Steamship Line and many other large buildings were demolished. Banks were closed and all business activity of the city ceased, to permit the hastily mobilized relief forces to function.

Interior Damage Unknown

The government announced that three vessels were expected here from Porto Rico early tomorrow, bringing supplies and medicine. Medicine and physicians were ex-

Carl Panzram Dies on Gallows With Sneer on His Lips

Slayer Sent to Prison From D. C. Expresses Regret He Was Unable to Kill All Mankind

By United Press

FEDERAL PENITENTIARY, Leavenworth, Kans.—Showing contempt for life until the end, Carl Panzram, who proudly referred to himself as "the most criminal man in the world," died on the gallows here today for the murder of a prison foreman.

The trap was sprung at 6:01 a. m. He was declared dead at 6:20 a. m.

Asks Preachers to Leave

One of Panzram's last acts was to ask two ministers in clerical garb to withdraw from his sight.

His boast that he would curse the hangman before the trap was sprung was not carried out. The second he stepped upon the gallows the black hood was drawn over his head and he was dropped to the rope's end.

The scaffold was constructed in a secluded corner of the prison yard, out of sight of other prisoners. Hidden machine guns were trained on the surrounding cellhouses from turrets around the yard.

A grey mist floated over the scene, obscuring the sunrise which was the signal for the execution.

Panzram, the first man condemned to death in Kansas since 1890, spent his last hours before his march to the gallows early today reading magazine stories which he would never finish.

Defiant to End

The defiant manner which Panzram exhibited during his prison term, first invoked for robbery in Washington, D. C., did not leave him as death neared.

He had demanded the death penal-

Justice Cox Sets Aside Trust Agreement Entered Into by Candy Manufacturer in 1923

An estate valued at $1,200,000 was left by Walter Brownley, candy manufacturer, who died March 20, according to his will admitted for probate today by Justice Joseph W, Cox in District Supreme Court.

The estate is divided in cash, bank stock, candy firm stocks and the controlling interest in the Brownley Investment Co.

Mrs. Emma Brownley, his wife, is willed the entire estate. In Sept., 1923, however, Brownley entered into a trust agreement with the National Metropolitan Bank under which the estate would be doled out in $12,000 annuities to his wife, and in other amounts to his brother and sister.

Upon the death of these three, the agreement stated, the estate was to be distributed to charitable organizations.

Justice Cox, however, set aside the agreement at the time of probating the will. He acted at the request of a friendly suit filed by Mrs. Brownley with the consent of all interested parties.

Atty. Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Mrs. Brownley, said that she and the other beneficiaries have agreed to a new trust agreement.

Coste and Bellonte Will Continue On Here Tomorrow for Luncheon at White House; Celebration to Be Held on Monday

By United Press

LOVE FIELD, Dallas, Tex.—Capt. Dicudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte lifted their scarlet sesquiplane from Love Field at 11:32 a. m. today and headed east on the first span of their return flight to New York.

A wildly cheering throng waved farewell to the pilots who conquered the Atlantic Ocean on the first heavier than air flight from Paris to New York and then came on to Dallas to win a prize of $25,000.

The plane Question Mark rose gracefully into the air and was followed shortly by another plane carrying Rene Racover, manager of the French airmen.

Coste and Bellonte have put approximately 5500 miles behind them since their departure from Paris. Today they decided to slacken the pace and stop at Louisville, for much needed rest tonight.

They will continue to Washington tomorrow, according to their manager, for a luncheon with President Hoover. A reception will be held in their honor at the Capital Monday.

Coste and Bellonte slipped onto Love Field, outside of Dallas, at 5:29 p. m. yesterday to surprise a tumultous crowd of 25,000 persons and to win the $25,000 reward offered by Col. William E. Easterwood, former chewing gum magnate and Dallas capitalist.

A demonstrative evening followed
