Man Who Kept Girl's Corpse in His Room 7 Years Faces Trial

X-Ray Expert, 70, Tells How He Sought to Bring Beloved Back to Life

By the Associated Press.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 8.—The fantastic story of an old man, who sought to restore life to a young woman he loved, attracted throngs to an undertaking establishment for a glimpse of the corpse he kept in his bedroom seven years.

More than 2,000 Key Westers yesterday filed past the remains, which Karl Tanzler Van Cosel said he wax-molded into a likeness of the beautiful matron who died nine years ago at the age of 19.

Van Cosel, 70-year-old X-ray expert formerly employed at the Marine Hospital here, remained in jail in default of $1,000 bond. He faced a hearing in Justice of the Peace Court today on a charge of "maliciously" disturbing the contents of a tomb, but County Solicitor Allen B. Cleare, jr., said that, regardless of the outcome, a sanity hearing would be held.

"I wouldn't like the responsibility of turning loose this man without an examination by a competent psychiatrist and a decision by a board of examiners," Mr. Cleare declared.

"His existence has been woven around the memory of a girl for the last several years and no one knows how he will react if he feels he has lost the body forever."

Mrs. Mario Medina, sister of the dead girl, Elena Hoyos, said she was determined that the body be buried again.

Van Cosel appeared surprised that he should be arrested, declaring: "I promised Elena that I would take care of her no matter what happened. Her father told me I could care for her body. She was so beautiful I wanted to preserve her and try my experiments to see whether life could be restored."

The slight, bearded man readily told of falling in love with the girl, then separated from her husband, when she was treated at the hospital for tuberculosis. After her death he financed construction of a vault and obtained permission of the family to have the body disinterred and placed there.

When he found that decay had set in, he said he took the remains to the hospital and used chemicals he believed would preserve the flesh. Later, he took the body to his home.

Capt. C. T. Schwegler Dies in San Francisco

Capt. Schwegler, a native of Switzerland, came to this country in 1880, having served in the Swiss army. After the Spanish War, during which he commanded L Company, Third Missouri Volunteers, he came to Washington to work with the War Department. He retired in 1932 and since had been living in California.

A son, Karl G. Schwegler, of Berkeley, survives.

Counsel Holds Papers Outside Wage-Hour Law

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—A contention that newspapers were exempt from provisions of the Federal wage-hour law was voiced in Federal court yesterday by Elisha Hanson, counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Mr. Hanson appeared for the Lowell (Mass.) Sun, which challenged the right of the Federal agency to examine its books and records. Judge George C. Sweeney upheld the newspaper in its contention that a subpoena served by the wages and hours division was improperly drawn, in that it was not signed by the district administrator or sealed.

In dismissing the proceedings "without prejudice," Judge Sweeney said he had no intention to rule on the constitutionality of the law as it affected newspapers, and suggested a new subpoena be drawn to prevent technicalities from delaying an eventual decision, probably by the Supreme Court.

Mr. Hanson argued that newspapers were a public service and outside the provisions of wage-hour regulations.

Vernon C. Stoneman, attorney for the Government, said that Congress had given the wages and hours division the right to inspect books and records of any concern.

Takoma Park C. C. Hears O'Conor Urge Strong Defense

Governor Tells Banquet Guests New Units of Guard to Be Formed

"A thoroughly adequate defensive force, by land and sea and air, is the one safeguard against power-crazed leaders, who seek new outlets and new sources of wealth for their coffers," Gov. O'Conor of Maryland told more than 200 members and guests at the fall banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of Takoma Park, Md.-D. C., last night at the Manor Club, Norbeck, Md.

"Universal peace and the theory of overcoming warlike threats by soft words were splendid objectives 10 years ago," he continued. "But today conditions are different. The fact is now being realized generally, I believe, that we citizens of richly blessed America no longer are established in comfortable seats on the sidelines of the struggles now going on, as mere interested spectators. Difficult as it is to realize such a fact, there is no assurance that tomorrow, or next month, may not find us actively embroiled, perhaps even fighting desperately, as is England at this very minute, to protect our own national integrity," said the speaker.

Sees Co-operation.

In referring to the co-operation between the States and the National Government, he said: "One thing that the emergency facing the Nation has done, with reference to the functioning of Government, was to bring about a much closer relationship between State and Federal Governments. Under ordinary circumstances such a development might not be quickly adopted by our State, for it ever has been the Maryland tradition that the people of our State could handle their own problems. As our concept of present-day problems is outlined, however, you can perceive readily how, of necessity, this increased interrelationship between State and Federal Government has come into being. And prospects are that it will become greater rather than diminish.

"Defense is not, and cannot be, a State affair. It is too big a problem for any State to attempt to solve itself. It is a problem for the entire Nation. In preparedness, in a country as far-flung as ours, only in union is there strength."

Predicts New Guard Units.

Relative to replacing the National Guard units of Maryland, when called into active service on January 3, he said there is available to Maryland, in the ranks of the various veterans' organizations and among thousands of former soldiers in the State, an ample reserve of active man-power to form the nucleus of new units that will be organized.

The banquet guests were welcomed in a brief speech by J. Arthur Walters, president of the chamber, while Bill Coyle, radio director of The Star, acted as master of ceremonies. The invocation was given by Rev. Father Richard J. Barron, pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church. Among those welcomed were Oliver W. Youngblood, Mayor of Takoma Park, and for several years president of the chamber, and Lacey Shaw, of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Gov. O'Conor was introduced by Judge Ralph G. Shure of Takoma Park, who paid tribute to the speaker as "one of the hardest working Governors in the history of Maryland." The entertainment feature included selections by the Euphonic Quartet, accompanied by Mrs. Gertrude E. Dyre-Parsons and by Casey's String Trio.
