PEACE EFFORTS UPSET

Sadat Recalls Envoys To Israel-Egypt Talks

United Press International

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, who launched his peace initiative two months ago today with a historic trip to Israel, has recalled his envoys from Israeli-Egyptian talks in Jerusalem, leaving Middle East peace efforts a shambles.

Sadat, accusing Israel of trying to sidetrack his peace initiative, Wednesday ordered the return of Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel and his delegation from Jerusalem, where Israel and Egypt were conducting their first full-scale peace negotiations. The exhausted Egyptian diplomats landed in Cairo before dawn today.

The Israeli cabinet reacted swiftly to Sadat's move, issuing a communique that assailed Egypt's "astonishing intransigence" but expressed willingness to resume the talks.

Israel, Egypt and the United States all said they believed the peace talks could be salvaged. But unless reversed, Sadat's dramatic move threatened to end the peace initiative he launched Nov. 19 with his unprecedented trip to Jerusalem.

RESUMPTION uncertain

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance talked by telephone to Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin and later said, "The talks have not been broken off. The question of resumption is something that will be decided in the future. I believe the peace process will continue."

Vance was scheduled to meet Begin today and fly to Cairo Friday to meet Sadat.

Sadat's move appeared to be an attempt to step up the pressure on the United States to find a solution to the Middle East conflict, including the possibility of forcing Israeli concessions.

"Egypt leaves the assessment of the situation to world conscience, declaring its innocence of the possibility of failure and disappointment of the hopes of millions, for which it is not responsible," Sadat said in a statement read by his information minister.

WORLD CONSCIENCE

Egyptian officials in Cairo said Sadat's appeal to "world conscience" was directed largely at Washington.

"We definitely think the Americans should increase persuasion on Israel," an official spokesman for Sadat's negotiating team said on its return to Cairo today.

"The talks are suspended," said spokesman Mursi Saad el-Din. "Let's hope this is not the end of the road."

Two hours after Sadat's move was announced, President Carter called the Egyptian president and urged him during a 10-minute conversation to keep the peace talks going.

Sadat assured Carter he did not plan a return to war, but said, "Israel wants territory, not peace," according to a spokesman.

WASN'T CLEAR

Sadat agreed to allow the defense ministers of the two nations to meet in Cairo Saturday, two days later than planned, but it was not clear whether those stalemated talks would actually resume.

Sadat also called an emergency session of the Egyptian parliament Saturday to "reveal all the facts of the situation."

As Kamel left Jerusalem's Hilton Hotel conference center, he was escorted to the lobby by Vance and met by Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, who then rode with him on the half-hour drive to Ben-Gurion Airport.

The three diplomats smiled and chatted cordially as they walked through lines of reporters and television cameras. They passed heaps of suitcases of Egyptian delegates and reporters who hastily packed when the news from Cairo was announced.

JUDGE'S WIFE TURNED DOWN

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) – Superior Court Judge Harry F. Brauer gave this reason for dismissing a prospective juror.

"You can't serve on a jury in this court," he said. "You don't pay any attention to anything I say at home, and there is no reason to believe you would listen to anything I would say here."

He directed his wife, Georgia, to another courtroom for jury duty.

3 BODIES FOUND

Scotland Murder Case Grows

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) – A former member of Parliament and two members of his butler's family have been found murdered, and police say they don't know how many more bodies may turn up.

What could become one of Britain's most bizarre murder cases began with the discovery of a woman's body in a stream three weeks ago.

But it was not until the naked and hooded corpse of Donald Hall, 37, was found in the trunk of an automobile last Monday that police realized they had a real mystery on their hands.

The woman found in the stream, Marry Coggle, was listed as Hall's common-law wife. Hall was identified as the brother of Archibald Hall, 52, the butler of Walter Scott-Elliot, an 82-year-old former Labor MP for a northern English district.

On Wednesday, the body of Scott-Elliot – educated at Eton with World War I service in the elite Cold Stream Guards and once married to an Austrian baroness – was found in a shallow grave in Invernesshire, 80 miles north of Glasgow.

Scott-Elliot and his second wife, Dorothy, 60, had not been seen at their London apartment since Dec. 13 but were not reported missing because they were thought to be on vacation.

Police are now searching for two more bodies – those of Mrs. Scott-Elliot and a gardener who disappeared last July from his home near Dumfries.

"I don't know how many more we may end up with," Detective Chief Superintendent George MacPherson said.

Police, who visited the Scott-Elliots' apartment, discovered a number of valuable antiques missing.

Donald Hall's body was discovered in the car trunk after hotelier Norman Wight, suspicious of two men who booked in at his Blenheim House Hotel in North Berwick telephoned the police.
