Wind Topples Saratoga Ferris Wheel

LEHI — High gusty winds Saturday evening toppled the giant ferris wheel at Saratoga, it was reported by R. M. Eastmond, owner.

Mr. Eastmond said winds had been blowing all afternoon and about 5:30 p.m. an especially hard gust came, toppled the ride and scattered debris over a wide area.

He also said that all rides had been closed when the strong winds began and no one was on the midway when the big wheel fell.

Also damaged by the falling wheel was a building which housed one of the concessions. Damage to the ferris wheel was estimated at $10,000 and the loss was not covered by insurance.

Mr. Eastmond said the wheel is one of the largest built and was installed at the resort on the northern shore of Utah Lake in 1965. Efforts will be made to salvage parts and plans are to rebuild it as soon as possible, according to the owner.

Marchers

in West Coast history.

Addressing the rally at the U.N., in addition to King, were Stokely Carmichael, head of the "black power" Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee; Floyd McKissick, head of CORE, and pacifist pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock.

King and five other of the march leaders left the rally and entered through the heavily guarded U.N. gates to go up to the 38th floor office of U.N. undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche where they presented him with a peace petition condemning the Vietnam war as "illegal and unjust." They spent about 10 minutes there.

The entire U.N. plaza was aswarm with humanity as King spoke. He demanded an end to the bombing in Vietnam.

"The pursuit of this widened war has narrowed the promised dimensions of the domestic welfare programs, making the poor, white and Negro, bear the heaviest burdens both at the front and at home," he said.

King Keynotes

"We arm Negro soldiers to kill on foreign battlefields but offer little protection for their relatives from beatings in our own South," he said.

King went out of his way, however, to say that while he believed everyone had a duty to be in both peace and civil rights movements, he was "not urging a single organization force." King had come under criticism from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and others for linking the two.

Despite the prominence given King as principal speaker, the great majority of the demonstrators were white, perhaps as much as 90 per cent.

Tax Deadline

er new. IRS started checking some returns by computer several years ago. But this year, for the first time, every single tax return is being run through the "Martinsburg Monster," the government's master tax robot, hidden away in the gentle hills of West Virginia.

No question about it, the machines are much better than men at catching tax cheats. As IRS Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen put it in an interview with UPI: "We are nationwide with automatic data processing and we can pick up most anyone who fails to file, rather quickly."

But the machines aren't all bad. They seem to be doing a faster job of getting refunds out to those who overpaid their taxes during 1966.

By April 7, the last day for which figures are available, IRS had mailed out refund checks worth $3.6 billion to 24.1 million lucky Americans. That's 12 per cent more refunds than had gone out at the same time last year, when only some returns were being machine-checked.

Cohen estimated that the IRS would make 45 million refunds this year. Since about 70 million Americans are due to file tax returns, more than half of them are due to get money back.

Mistake-Finders

IRS computers are also good at finding mistakes that taxpayers make to their own detriment.

"Last year we refunded something in excess of $80 to $84 million to taxpayers who had made mistakes against themselves," Cohen said.

"When we checked those for mathematical verification we sent them a refund."

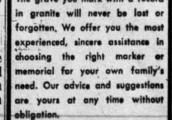

Through April 7, the computers turned up more than 2 million errors: 946,000 taxpayers made mistakes in math; 486,000 used the wrong tax table; 327,000 forgot to include their Social Security number or gave the wrong number; 268,000 failed to include their W-2 withholding forms or other necessary documents; and 196,000 simply forgot to sign their tax returns before dropping them in the mail.

"I guess they were going so fast and were so fed up when they got to the end that they forgot to sign," an IRS official said.

Kidding aside, a tax return without a signature is not a legal document and will be returned to the taxpayer. This will delay a refund.

Speck Found

"You can't beat the fact that eight girls were killed."

Within 35 minutes of the verdict, Speck was in pajamas, and preparing to bed down in his detention cell in the modernistic Peoria County courthouse.

Getty said "Speck was disappointed...he wants to see his family, that's all."

Crowd Cheers

There were cheers outside the locked courtroom when word came through that the jury had decided Speck was guilty and would die for the eight murders.

Two of those who heard the verdict were fathers of the murdered girls.

One, burly Chicago tavern owner Joseph Matusek, spoke in a broken voice to newsmen outside the courthouse steps.

Freeway Link Bids Opened For

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The first of several big highway jobs throughout the state was advertised Saturday by the Utah Highways Department.

Bids were opened for building a $1:55-million 12-mile section of graded roadway for Interstate Highway 70 between Ghost Rocks and Rattlesnake Pass, Emery County.

Henry Helland, director of highways said further bids will be advertised April 22 for an even larger project of laying roadbed for I-80 from Bonneville Salt Flats to Knolls. He said a total of $10.4 million is programmed for this work.

Helland said the I-70 job is for the eastbound leg of the highway. The westbound section will be advertised for bids later.

He said contracts for paving I-70 across Emery County will be awarded after the graveled roadbed is completed across the San Rafael Swell.

Before I-70 is opened to traffic ,sections through Salina Canyon and Clearcreek Canyon are to be widened. Helland said this would take about two years.

Stock Mart Plods Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market made plodding progress this week, waiting until the final session to respond to an accumulation of encouraging business items.

Trading got off on a lower note in a slow start Monday. Prices improved gradually in the remaining season. The pace, however, dwindled until a late strong upswing.

Wall Street analysts attributed the tack of enthusiasm to the fact that many traders were holding to the sidelines to wait out any adverse effects of the highly anticipated and much talks about lower first quarter earnings.

Grim prospects for a nationwide trucking strike and railroad strike depressed the list early this week, but the trucking industry reached a tentative agreement and President Johnson delayed the rail strike.

With these gloomy items out of the way, the market looked for encouragement and found it in such items as a rise in auto sales for the first third of April compared with the same period last year.

record as Michigan governor will win him the backing of the nation's Republicans, announced Friday he would cut $185 million from his $1.5 billion 1968 budget if the GOP-dominated Michigan Legislature continues to balk on passage of the state's first income tax.

Virginia is generally regarded as a stronghold, as far as Republicans are concerned, of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the man Romney may hve to beat out for the GOP presidential nomination.

Romney told Virginia Republicans he "will not compromise with fiscal integrity." On the other hand, he said, "the administration's failure to follow sound fiscal policies has burdened us with growing inflation, debt and taxes."

He said Johnson and other Democratic leaders are unable to correct th "fundamental flaw" that leads to the monopolistic practices of big labor and big business.

"They are too indebted to the economic giants and labor bosses whose excesses must be curbed," Romney said.

He warned of impending strikes in the rubber and copper industries that could have "serious implications" for the Vietnam war.

This was the only reference to the war to which Romney gave his support in a speech April 7 at Hartford, Conn.
