FILIPINO AT YALE CANNOT REGISTER

Advanced Plea That He Is an American Citizen.

THE BOARD NON-PLUSSED

Appeal to Washington by Telephone Settles Question Against the Student.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 29.—Alexander Troup, editor of the "New Haven Union," threatened to bring mandamus proceedings against the local board of registration because it refused to swear in J. E. Lagdameo, a Filipino and a Yale forestry school student, who wanted to become a voter. Yesterday was the last day for swearing in voters here.

The board declared that the Filipino could not properly come up for registration, as he had not taken out naturalization papers. Lagdameo contended that he was an American citizen already, inasmuch as the United States has taken possession of the Philippine Islands, and added:

"To whom am I to swear allegiance; I am already a citizen of this country."

The Board Puzzled.

The board was puzzled. The Filipino had already told them that he was about twenty-five years old, and that he had been in this country five years. He had also been a resident of this State and town long enough to qualify him for elector's rights, but he was rejected and told to go and get naturalization papers. Then he appealed to Mr. Troup. The latter made a plea to the board, and inquired who had objected to registering the Yale man.

"I did," said the Democratic general registrar, Francis W. Foley.

"You probably objected to him because you thought he was going to vote the Republican ticket," retorted Mr. Troup.

The Right to Vote.

Then he told the board that he thought under the existing governmental conditions between the United States and the Philippine Islands that the Yale Filipino was a citizen of this country and that he should be made a voter.

Mr. Troup retained the law firm of Newton & Hewitt to defend the rights of the student. Judge Newton is the United States commissioner of bankruptcy in this district, and he argued at length that Lagdameo was entitled to be a voter.

While all this was going on Mayor John P. Studley, a Republican, was at the long distance telephone trying to get into communication with Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican National Committee in New York, because, in the judgment of Mr. Troup and the mayor, the question had gone beyond the limits of a local issue and had assumed national proportions.

Decision of Court.

Mr. Troup suggested that they obtain the opinion of the Attorney General of the United States on the matter, because Mr. Cortelyou was not in New York, and the two lawyers at headquarters there were divided on the point involved. The Attorney General was out in his office when Mayor Studley got telephone connection with Washington. The Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Robb, sent back this opinion over the telephone:

"The Supreme Court of the United States has held that a Filipino is not a resident of the United States. Therefore he would have to be naturalized."

Then the Yale Filipino was rejected. The board of registration has a Democratic majority. Young Lagdameo is a great admirer of William J. Bryan and has met him on several occasions when he came to this city. His home in this city during his attendance at the Forestry school is at the Yale Graduate Club. It is said that he is a member of one of the leading families in the Philippines.

DISTRICT BUILDING CORNERSTONE LAYING

Ceremony Will Probably Take Place Next Spring—Thought Exceedingly Appropriate.

Although no official announcement has yet been made concerning the matter, it is now practically certain that there will be next spring an impressive "cornerstone laying," celebrating the beginning of work on the new Municipal Building superstructure.

Capt. Chester Harding, supervisor of the construction, has expressed himself to a Times reporter as in favor of ceremonies marking the laying of the cornerstone of the building. District Commissioner Macfarland takes the same view of the matter.

No Arrangements Made.

Owing to the length of time that must elapse before the time for the event, no definite arrangements have yet been made for it. It is understood, however, that the ceremony will be under the supervision of the Masons. Prominent men, it is thought, will make addresses touching on the growth and development of Washington and the District.

As the cornerstone of the Capitol was laid by Masons it is considered as peculiarly appropriate that the first Municipal Building of the District should be begun under the same auspices.

Question of Supplying Stone.

Captain Chester Harding, acting with the architects of the building, will soon begin an investigation of the capacity of competing quarries for furnishing large amounts of stone within a short time. It is thought the District authorities ought to be sure of getting the stone on time before selecting the kind to be used.

Beyond the assertion that the commission inclines to the selection of a light granite or marble, nothing can be learned concerning what stone will be chosen for the structure. The commission is much pleased with the bids and samples of stone submitted yesterday.

GETTING THE MONEY ANYHOW.

Baxter—They say your uncle has cut you out of his will?

Carter—Yes; but it won't make any difference if I can only get him to keep on playing bridge with me a few weeks longer.—Boston Transcript.

All the High Schools Eager for Athletics

While Studying Hard Students Are Practicing Football and Basketball and Drilling Daily in the Military Companies.

Regular routine has taken the place of indifference among students in the high schools. From every quarter, in the early morn or afternoon, can be seen faithful scholars going to or returning from their efforts for the attainment of more and better knowledge.

At Business there is about as downcast a looking bunch as is to be found in the city, and all on account of the loss of a football game. Standing around at recess or after school may be seen the bruised and battered gridiron warriors with faces as long as if the world was expected to come to an end at any moment.

Hart, the captain of one of the companies, and, incidentally, a much battered and bruised football player, marches proudly at the head of his company with his arm in a sling, the result of the game with Western last Tuesday, while all the small boys along the way proclaim him a veteran and hero, much to the disgust of Captain Hart.

Bender Out of Business.

Another downcast hero is Bender, who tried to do things to Western's line and interferences with his head: result, Mr. Bender put out of business for a few days and the Bankers lost the best player on their team. As everyone knows who is interested in school football, the team was never so strong as to make the other school teams shake in their boots. Unless they brace up and do some phenomenal work they will occupy Eastern's favorite place at the bottom of the list, and unless they are careful the bottom itself may be tempted to drop out.

Outside of the interest taken in athletics, the company is the only thing that attracts even the semblance of interest, unless it is the school paper, and even that seems to be a matter of very little concern to anyone except the staff and faculty. What Business lacks is school spirit.

The best thing that can be done is for Business to copy the enthusiasm that is shown by the other high schools, and encourage and cheer the wearers of the Blue and Orange on to victory instead of trying to spur them on with reproaches.

Doings at Western.

The pupils from across the creek are in the best humor imaginable, and if there are any friends that would like to borrow a quarter, now is the best time, for they are flushed with victory and feel very generous.

The reason for this happiness is the fine manner in which they opened their football season, decisively defeating Business in a one-sided contest by the score 33 to 0. The Western boys have a crackerjack team this year and one that the other high school boys are beginning to respect, if not actually fear.

Church, who for a number of years has been a figure on the local school gridiron, is this year the captain as well as the coach. Morse, who last year distinguished himself as a punter and speedy halfback, is this season playing quarterback, and has begun his brilliant work already by kicking a goal from the field on the 20-yard line at an angle of 45 degrees.

Some Old Men Back.

There are several other old men back this year, the most worthy of mention being Phelan, right end, who can boast of having made the prettiest tackle that has been made by a high school man this year. Besides the last year men there are a very promising bunch of freshmen trying for football honors.

"The Westerner," the official organ of the school, will be published next week and promises to be a good paper this year, in fact better than at any former time. A debating society has been organized and promises to be successful, and all the students seem to take much interest in it. The company is busy at work learning the tactics which are to be in vogue this year; there are six or seven fours and the boys are going to make a strong bid for the pennant. The social affairs of the school are not in running order as yet, but when they do begin they will astonish everybody.

Eastern Takes Courage.

This year reminds the students at Eastern of the time when the Capitol Hill school stood well to the front in every branch of school competition, when its only opponent was Central, with whom it divided honors for this year; they have gotten a good start and are forging to the front again, especially in athletics.

When the pigskin chasers from that seat of learning defeated the boys from Business, their cup of happiness nearly run over and when they held the knights of the padded suits from Central down to a comparatively small score their delight knew no bounds.

The team this year is heavy, fast and resourceful and above all plays together like clockwork. With the time that they have had to practice they are likely to spring a surprise on their opponents in the next game, maybe in the form of a neat little score.

Girls Want Scalps.

The boys of Eastern are not the only ones who are becoming active in athletics, for the girls are out looking for basketball scalps. The girls' basketball teams in the high schools are not made up of the literary drones who fail to distinguish themselves in mathematics and classics. Occasionally a derelict shines as a goal thrower or center, but, according to Mrs. Elizabth R. Walton, she often reforms in all things when she finds the one thing she can do well. The director of the department of physical training is steadily creating a sentiment against the admission to team work of girls who fail to make the school requirements.

Of High Standard.

The Eastern High School teams, which have just been made up, promise to maintain the high standard in scholarship, department, and athletics for which the school is noted. The captain has not as yet been elected. The schedule of games will be announced as soon as the Central, Western, and McKinley have played off their trial games. The first inter-school game will probably be played about November 18, between Central and Western.

The affairs of the company are getting along as fine as can be expected. Last week the girls gave a reception to the officers of the company, and it proved to be a very successful affair. Eastern has not decided as yet on her dance program.

Technical's Good Team.

The athletics at Technical for this year, as everyone knows, began with football Mr. Hecox has again been placed in charge of this important branch and soon after school opened, a squad of about twenty-five men reported for practice. Many of last year's crack team are back, and furnished "Tech." a strong foundation upon which to build their aspirations for another season's championship honors.

The team has been successful in all the games played so far, winning an easy victory from Business by the score of 27 to 0, and defeating the George Washington scrubs in a pretty game by the score of 17 to 0. Besides winning these games they have won several other games of less importance.

Heretofore, the Tech girls have not done much in the athletic line, but the outlook for this year is most encouraging.

Have eBtter Opportunity.

As members of the Inter-High School League, they will be under the general supervision of Mrs. Walton, and one thing may be assured that, being under her direction, hard work is before them. The unity that previously has been lacking is now possible, and it is up to them to rise to the occasion. They have had the fortune of having several good basketball and tennis players; earnest and determined practice on the part of others will enable them to aspire to victory. The tennis tournament which took place Friday closed the season.

There will be three companies at Tech this year, three good companies well equipped with officers and non-commissioned officers. The appointments this year have been somewhat tardily in forthcoming, which caused no little excitement among those who were expecting to be intrusted with commissions. At each preliminary drill there would be a rumor of "The appointments will be announced today;" but each passed until Monday, October 10, when the formality occurred, bitterly disappointing some and greatly pleasing others. The colonelcy this year went to Eastern Tech, however, receiving the lieutenant colonelcy.

March at Inaugural.

This year there will be plenty of cause for excitement in the regiment. Besides the regular sham battle, regimental review, regimental parade, and competitive drill, there will be the inauguration ceremonies in which the High School Cadets will take an important part.

The regiment will be somewhat handicapped at first, owing to the fact that there has been a complete change of drill regulations.

Six Tech dances have been arranged for the season.

A society known as the "Junior Club" has been organized by the members of the third-year class, and because of the presence of practically all the members of last year's "Sophomore Club," a successful season is assured.

The "Ancient Order of Black Cats" at its first meeting this year decided to increase its membership, owing to a large number having left for college. Accordingly three "Kittens" were given the usual first degree. With the publication of the "Hand and Mind" this year the paper enters upon a new area of its two years' existence. Heretofore it has been presented as a quarterly, but at the close of school last June, it was unanimously voted, at a meeting of the senior class, that owing to the greatly increased student body, and because of the prominence of their school, its representative paper should be a monthly.

Central in High Fettle.

At Central there are now 927 scholars, about eighty more than last year. In a school of that size there should be plenty of material to develop into good athlete teams, good companies, and a good debating team. They have the advantage of size over their competitors, which ought to show in the results. If everyone that can do things will come out and do them, it will show in the end.

There are all sorts of things to try for. It's a little late for football, but track, basketball, baseball, debating, and drill are coming on. There is another thing that a big school ought to do besides winning championships. It ought to support a good school paper; there ought to be plenty of material to put in it, and plenty of money to run it with, and if everyone will do what he can and send in all possible contributions "The Review," which at the present time ranks among the best papers put out by any of the schools of the District, will be easily the paper of the day.

Interest in Debate.

There is one school interest that should have special attention because it needs it. Debating is in danger of becoming extinct, unless it receives more support. Central has lost some of the best debaters she had last year, by graduation, and unless she can fill the breach with some new material the end will be sad when the challenge from Eastern High School and Baltimore City College comes.

Eastern won the debate last year, and unless the students of Central get a "hump on" they will get left this year.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF MANY MURDERS

Horrible Series of Crimes Attributed to Her.

A GERMAN BABY FARMER

Children Done Away With in Cruelest Manner—Every Offense on Penal Code.

HAMBURG, Oct. 29.—The trial of the notorious Elizabeth Wiese for baby-farming crimes which have horrified the whole of Europe is now in progress.

For two years the police have been collecting evidence against her in Germany, France, England and America. Ostensibly a baby farmer, she is said to have turned this business into a vast commercial agency.

Many Crimes.

She is accused of murdering five small children, of often attempting to poison her husband, of forgery, of perjury and subornation of perjury, as well as other offenses.

It is alleged that many of the children intrusted to her by unhappy mothers, who paid large premiums, were either drugged with morphia or thrown into the Elbe by Wiese, or burned in her stove.

In some cases she is said to have transferred the unfortunate babies to other baby farmers, who received no installment of money after the first. In other cases again, it is alleged, the children were sold by Wiese for unnameable purposes.

Purposes of Blackmail.

She is believed to have done quite a large business in finding children to pose as the result of childless marriages when estates were in question. She also used the children for purposes of blackmail, and is stated to have extracted hundreds of pounds from a London doctor.

The proceedings are likely to last for a long time, as evidence in only one case of child murder has been taken up to the present.

ROGESTVENSKY'S CLAIM TO GENUINE GREATNESS

Genius of Brilliant Hue Displayed in Rescuing the Baltic Fleet From Lurking Perils of the Briny Deep.

Admiral Rogestvensky is the man of the hour.

He has upheld the traditions of the Russian navy and has proved that a Russian ship is a danger to something else beside itself.

He has made his name almost as familiar as that of John Smith, a very big task to accomplish with a name like the one he has.

He has become the first hero of the Russian navy who has survived the operation of getting into the hero class.

Like all real yard-wide heroes he has been vilified in most unmerciful fashion, and has been called by names even a little rougher than the one he was born with. Nevertheless, he occupies a lofty position on the ladder of fame, one that is much higher than the usual point of a Russion admiral "up a tree."

A Mere Incident.

Admiral Rogestvensky's fame does not rest upon the destruction of the Hull fishing fleet. That is a mere delusion on the part of a public which has been unable to appreciate the brilliancy of the maneuvers of the Baltic fleet. The encounter in the North Sea was a mere incident in the thrilling voyage, and to doubt the explanation offered with regard to it is to confer stupidity.

It was not only an incident. It was an accident.

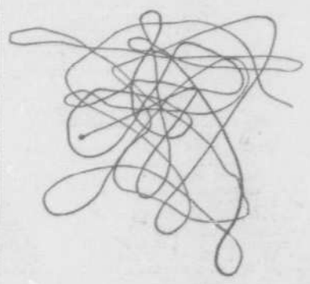

Isn't that perfectly plausible and reasonable? Do Russian sailors ever hit things in any other way? Had the gallant gunners of the squadron really aimed at the Hull fishermen all the excitement that has since prevailed would not have occurred, for their shots would fallen harmlessly in the bosom of the waters, and the lion's tail would not be in its present state of aggravated soreness.

Again, Admiral Rogestvensky maintains the logic of events when he declares that his crew went away without knowing that they had hit anything. Had things turned out differently, had the Russians really known that they had hit something, the surprise might have produced consequences.

But it is the claim of Rogestvensky to genius and not his claim to veracity that excites the greatest interest. And this is substantiated beyond the shadow of a doubt on his famous explanation. The Czar owes the gallant tar the best he has in the house for bringing his ships through the manifold perils that beset them in the danger-fraught waters of Europe.

Preliminary Maneuvers.

When at first the peculiar evolutions of the Baltic were reported, how Rogestvensky looped the loops, cut figure eights, and performed many other varieties of manuevers with his ships, the world was inclined to marvel and tempted to sneer. But in choosing a route that resembled the accompanying diagram, the admiral showed how clever he could be under trying circumstances.

A Mystery Solved.

What was once a mystery becomes now as plain as day. There is how the brilliant Muscovite dodged the numerous Japanese torpedo boats that lurked in his pathway. There is how he avoided the veracious Jobberwocks and escaped from bloodthirsty Thing-umbobs. There is how he kept all the mighty monsters of the briny deep guessing! There is a representation of the road the admiral took to fame, although it might equally serve as a picture of the British lion's tail after he got through twisting it.

That such a man should be the target for venomous criticism is a sad commentary on human nature.

M. MONET DARES TO HATE PARIS

Master Impressionist Unhappy There.

LOVES HIS COUNTRY HOME

Prefers London to French Capital, and Has the Courage to Declare It.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The French affectionately regard Claude Monet, the great master of the impressionistic school, as all their own.

Yet Monet has the daring to say, "I hold Paris in horror." And Paris is France.

Monet's latest views of the Thames have added to his fame in art-loving France. Actually he prefers smoky London to Paris, the brilliant.

"I love London," he said to one who was praising his pictures of London's river. "By chance I went there before I saw Paris; the city pleased me; I began to work. I returned four times, and each time with pleasure. But I am happy only at Giverny."

The impressionist, for nearly twenty-five years, has lived at Giverny, a little village in the Department of the Eure, twenty-eight miles from Paris. Short as is the distance from the capital, he rarely traverses it in his automobile.

At Giverny he is infinitely nearer nature. He has three gardens there. In one, the irises and peonies are exquisite; another boasts great riches of roses; the third Monet calls his Japanese garden, and it is full of exotic flowers.

Monet's atelier is very large, fairly flooded with light and filled with his pictures, among them some that the salon refused so disdainfully when impressionism began its career.

We Offer $1,000

For a Disease Germ That Liquozone Can't Kill

On every bottle of Liquozone we offer $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. We do this to assure you that Liquozone does kill germs.

And it is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease. It is this fact which gives Liquozone its worth to humanity; a worth so great that, after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, we paid $100,000 for the American rights. And we have spent over one million dollars, in one year, to buy the first bottle and give it free to each sick one who would try it.

Acts Like Oxygen

Liquozone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there any alcohol in it. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is an absolutely certain germicide. The reason is that germs are vegetables and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

Liquozone goes into the stomach, into the bowels, and into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. No germ can escape it, and none can resist it. The results are inevitable, for a germ disease must end when the germs are killed. Then Liquozone, acting as a wonderful tonic, quickly restores a condition of perfect health. Diseases which have resisted medicine for years yield at once to Liquozone, and it cures diseases which medicine never cures. Half the people you meet—wherever you are—can tell you of cures that were made by it.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.
